

Victory for our clients!

EVANS KINGSBURY LLP is happy to announce that we recently won summary judgment for our clients in a breach of fiduciary duty case which has been litigated for over four years. This all started when three siblings inherited a business and the land upon which the business operated. Almost immediately, they began fighting over how to run the business. One of the siblings sued, claiming that our clients had violated their fiduciary duties. We moved for summary judgment. The Superior Court found that the plaintiff waited too long to file the lawsuit and the claims were barred by the statute of limitations. The court also found that the plaintiff did not have standing to sue our clients. The court has now denied plaintiff's motion for a new trial and final judgment has been entered in favor of our clients.