Celebrating Settlements

In the last two weeks, Deirdre Kingsbury has successfully helped her clients settle their family law matters.

One was a contested divorce case involving a separate property business and spousal support, set for trial later this month. The other was a contentious custody and visitation case involving a two-year-old, which began when the baby was only a few months old. Settling family law cases is better for everyone involved, especially the children.

Whether you are seeking a divorce or custody of your child, Deirdre is a compassionate attorney who can coach you through the process.

October 2024 Appellate Update

Family Law Appeals

Jose Cardona appealed a domestic violence restraining order (DRVO) against him. The DVRO expired, but the Court of Appeal ruled that Cardona's appeal was not mooted by the expiration of the DRVO ... Read More

World Mental Health Day

Mental health should be discussed year-round. Mental illness affects lives globally and requires ongoing education and awareness. Breaking the stigma is crucial for advocacy, making it easier to talk about and access resources for healing.

National Coming Out Day

National Coming Out Day celebrates those embracing and sharing their true selves. It promotes a safe, inclusive world where LGBTQIA+ individuals can live authentically, without fear, and honor who they are.

Indigenous Peoples Day October 14

This year marks the fourth Indigenous Peoples Day in the U.S., with more states choosing it over Columbus Day. It's a day to honor Indigenous cultures, acknowledge the stolen land we live on, and reflect on their resilience and ongoing presence.

Thank You, First Responders! October 28

National First Responders Day recognizes the dedication and hard work of the public safety professionals who respond to emergencies. Their courage and commitment deserve our gratitude and support every day.
